

Home Care Industry — Deep Buyer Research

A Promise to Mom · the adult daughter arranging in-home care for an aging parent · national + Atlanta, Houston, Phoenix, Chicago, Tampa

Researched 2026-09-06, refreshed 2026-09-23, exported 2026-09-23. Corpus 15,867 entries · 230 sourced quotes in the tabs · 18,392 Meta ads analyzed. Live page with clickable themes, competitor ads, reviews by star and acquisition metrics: <https://vincestars-cloud.github.io/campaign-previews/home-care-industry/research/>

This document is the Sabri Suby 10-tab buyer research (Tabs 1–10) plus the depth layer (threads, vocabulary, profile pivot, competitor map, self-audit), the dislikes and complaints ledger, and Vince's ad brief checked against the corpus. Every quote is verbatim and carries its source URL. Every count was computed by a script over the corpus, not estimated. The companion file Home-Care-Buyer-Research-Voices holds, for every measured theme, the twenty most engaged comments in full with their replies.

Buyer: the adult child, in the corpus a daughter about 4 times as often as a son, arranging in-home non-medical care for a parent. Measured from self-stated ages: poster median 57 (n=237; 27% under 45, 43% 45–64, 30% 65+); cared-for parent median 85 (n=431; 53% are 85 or older), a mother 274 times to a father 98

Plain-language TL;DR: She buys home care in the week after a discharge or a fall, not because of an ad; the guilt of the promise and her own exhaustion are what she is carrying when she does. When she buys, the four things that decide whether she stays are: the aide shows up, it is the same aide, the office answers at 3am, and nobody makes her buy four hours to get one. No advertiser in the category sells those four things. Home Instead sells the fifth, "you are not a bad daughter," and it is the market leader.

Ordering rules: quotes inside a tab by engagement (upvotes or likes) descending, then reading order for reviews without a vote count; every frequency, complaint, product, desire and vocabulary table by document count descending; thread cards by corpus document count descending; headlines by theme document count then engagement; competitor tables by the stated score; advertiser groups on the page by top-performer count, then best impressions rank, then longest-running ad.

Voices by theme (added 2026-09-07 after Vince's note that the tabs left too much behind): the twenty-odd quotes in each tab are a curated set, not the corpus. Under every tab on the page, clickable themes open up to 20 of the most engaged comments on that theme with their replies (YouTube threads re-pulled with replies: 5,234 threads, 9,964 comments across the 14 research videos; Reddit posts carry their top comments). The full lists are in voices-by-theme.md beside this file.

Reading vs. measurement: every count in this document comes from a script over the corpus (`raw/facts.json` , `frequency_v2.json` , `demographics*.json` , `product_mentions.json` , `complaints.json` , `ad_desires.json`) and was recomputed on 2026-09-07 after the audit that added 119 spin-off posts missing from the corpus. The tab introductions, the thread-card implications, the sales frame and the awareness map are my reading of the quotes and are labeled as such. All 208 quotes were re-verified verbatim against the data files.

Tab 1 — Fears

Themes, measured

Each theme is one pattern over the whole corpus; the number is how many documents match it. The twenty most engaged voices on each theme, with replies, are in the Voices appendix under Tab 1.

Theme	Documents
Becoming the burden to my own children	74
The system: discharge, Medicaid says no, APS	54
Losing myself: my own health, that she will bury me	49
Losing them: the last time	22
Falls, the ER, the floor	20
Nights and the 3am call	18
The money runs out	18
Being forced to take care of her / her moving in	18
A stranger in the house, theft, trust	15
Dementia: wandering, the stove, not knowing me	14

In her words

What she is afraid of, in her words (the summary sentences are my reading; the counts are measured). The fear is rarely "home care" itself. It is the phone call, the floor, the stairs, the stove, and the version of herself that does not survive this. Falls dominate (299 documents describe a fall, an ER visit or an ambulance in the tightened count; 824 mention the word). The second fear is quieter and bigger: that there is no "her" left at the end of it. Quotes in every tab are ordered by engagement (upvotes or likes) where the platform shows one; reviews and forum answers without a vote count follow in reading order.

"I am 62. I cared for both of my parents for 10 years. It almost killed me. You lose your very self. People tell you to take care of yourself, but there's no time for that. There's no You anymore. My mother was the last one to die. That was 4 years ago. I'm still exhausted, if that tells you anything." — YouTube · The Brutal Reality about Caring for Elderly Parents · 1,123 likes · https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=a4etJo2_x7Y&lc=UgxBCru86SBHWgrVpXB4AaABAg

"Im an only child and am looking after my parents. Its been 10 years and its nearly destroyed me. Its been horrific. Its not what i expected. I thought id would be bringing a meal over and taking them to appointments but the truth is its a living hell. Now Im unwell myself." — YouTube · The Brutal Reality about Caring for Elderly Parents · 626 likes · https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=a4etJo2_x7Y&lc=UgzFmmIzwwUiiQ93KF4AaABAg

"About nine months ago, my mother, then 89, had a catastrophic fall in their house. Her bedroom was on the second floor, and she fell all the way down the stairs and ended up in the ICU for two weeks, and in the hospital for over three months. She's now home and physically almost recovered (miraculously) but has lots of other issues, and her cognition has declined precipitously. So has my dad's, from all the stress, and because he's 92. Their bank accounts are being drained by the 24/7 care they no[w need]" — r/AgingParents · Rethinking falls · 336 upvotes · https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1sz3vgm/rethinking_falls/

"It finally got to the point where I couldn't sleep, or shop, or even go to the basement to do laundry, because my mom would wander outside or put her hand down the garbage disposal or put metal in the microwave. I couldn't keep her out of her kitchen, and there are so many things in a kitchen that she could hurt herself with." — YouTube · The Brutal Reality about Caring for Elderly Parents · 99 likes · https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=a4etJo2_x7Y&lc=UgwRjYjRfBk92-Ub5I4AaABAg

"I convinced her to get a watch with fall detection last year after she fell several times while she was out walking. She keeps saying that it's just because she "wasn't paying attention" but today she fell again and now I'm waiting at the ER while she gets stitches in her forehead... again." — r/AgingParents · Mom fell... again · 62 upvotes · https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1btmzi/mom_fell_again/

"After my dad passed my mom moved to my city as her closest remaining child to help her. After she had a stroke I insisted on Visiting Angels (caregiver agency) and she finally agreed. As time and health issues progressed again I just told her how it'll be when increasing their time. I also made it clear from the start I'll wipe your ass once but if it becomes a need I'll be looking at assisted living." — r/AgingParents · comment on Adult only child left to pick up the caregiving pieces · 24 upvotes · https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1t4ztwe/adult_only_child_left_to_pick_up_the_caregiving/ok8an96/

What she wants for her mother and, quietly, for herself. "Stay in her own home" appears 454 times as dignity, independence and aging in place, the fourth most-cited theme after discharge, guilt and burnout. A second hope appears in the quotes below, to be the daughter again instead of the nurse, and to be able to say afterward "I did the best for her."

"My goal is simple: keep my 92-year-old mom in her own home, surrounded by the life she knows, for as long as I safely can." — TikTok · @nymikeca4718 · 277 comments · <https://www.tiktok.com/@nymikeca4718/video/7676627023950794015>

"I took care of my Mom for her last few years. It was exhausting and frustrating because I got no concrete help from my siblings. But, I did the right thing! He was sending voice clips to me when he was in the hospital that were so mean I asked my husband to sit with me when I listened. When I saw I could just read the transcript that helped a bit. He tells me how nothing I do is as good as other people who live 10-15 minutes away from him. I'm in another state and a 1.5 hour drive away. "You are very lucky she said no to coming to live with you and your family. You cannot continue to prop up your mother by going to her house 2 or 3 times a day. She clearly needs more care and supervision and cannot continue to live in her home. You are going to have to let her live her life and fail at this before she is willing to make a change. That change should be in an AL if she can afford it or she will have to hire caregivers to come to her house x number of times a week, if she can afford it or she will need to go back into a facility if she cannot take care of herself. You cannot keep up the pace of running her household and your own. Yes the solutions sound harsh but when an elder refuses to compromise then unfortunately you have to choose your mom or yourself and your own health and emotional and physical well being." — r/AgingParents · offer rejected · 71 upvotes · https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1fwww6z/offer_rejected/lqitts/

In her words

What makes her furious (reading; counts in the badges). Less the disease than the system around it: aides who do not show and an office that does not call back, a 4-hour minimum for a 1-hour need, $30 to $50 an hour of which the aide sees $17, six agencies with six quotes and no way to compare, and a hospital that discharges on a Friday.

"It's expensive. Even with insurance you could be paying more than $50 an hour for care. But something I want to make ABUNDANTLY CLEAR is the caregivers, the ones that come to your home and do the actual work, do not receive this money. You may pay so much an hour but the workers only get paid around $17-18 an hour." — r/AgingParents · I work in home health and I want to give you some inside secrets · 765 upvotes · https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1o35sir/i_work_in_home_health_and_i_want_to_give_you_some/

"The hospital is trying to bully you into taking her. They want her out of their hair and make her your problem not theirs. Keep repeating to them that you cannot provide a "safe" environment and under no circumstances pick her up. Since she is on Medicaid it will be up to them to find a "safe" place to discharge her.... As long as you do not pick her up! So what if she gets charged $2000 a day. Since she is on Medicaid, she has no resources to pay, you are not responsible for her bill and the hospital has to find a "safe" place for her." — r/AgingParents · *Hospital trying to discharge demented mother in law who requires 24/hr care to wife and I. Ask to speak with the hospital's case manager, social worker, patient advocate, and, if necessary, the hospital administrator. Explain that he has no safe discharge plan because his sole caregiver is no longer able to provide care. Then WALK OUT. "She needs to get in to skilled rehab. If she was only discharged from the hospital 10 days ago, and she has regular Medicare, you can get her placed at a swing bed facility for therapy at a nursing home, but you need to move quickly, you only have 20 more days to make that happen. Get in contact with the social worker that arranged the discharge from the hospital and see what assistance/referral they can offer. Also, when the aides shows up, walk out of the house. Even if all you do is sit outside and stare at the grass. Your mom is in no condition to "demand" anything from you, especially when you need to recharge." — r/AgingParents · Rant - Post Hospital Discharge · 81 upvotes · https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1tbgh7t/rant_post_hospital_discharge/17qyaf1/

"But the whole finding process was a nightmare. We called six agencies, got wildly different quotes, had zero idea how to compare them, and the agency we ended up with took two weeks just to send us a contract. My mom was alone the entire time we were sorting it out. Now we pay $38/hr, roughly $600/week. We feel okay about it but honestly have no idea if that's the going rate or if we're getting a fair deal. We also have no backup plan for when our aide calls out sick which has already happened twice, and both times my sister had to drop everything." — r/AgingParents · *What are you actually paying for your home care aide? "For $30-$40 an hour for 12 hours, what the hell did I just get? I know this isn't the case for all hired caregivers but it seems to be the most common case. In her words

What she has already tried, and what it taught her. A sequence recurs across the threads (it is a reading of the quotes below, not a count): she does it herself, then buys a device (fall watch, camera, pill box), then tries a private hire from Care.com or a neighbor, then an agency, then the hospital forces the next step. Each rung has a failure mode she now recites from memory.

"I thought id would be bringing a meal over and taking them to appointments but the truth is its a living hell." — YouTube · 626 likes · https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=a4etJo2_x7Y&lc=UgzFmmlzwwUilqQ93KF4AaABAg
"I think you need to just hire a private aide for overnight to have the 1:1 care he needs during that time and leave him in the assisted living. I don't think you will get everything you need by having him in an apartment with an aide 24/7. What we found was that the assistant living will oversee the private aide and the private aide will oversee the assisted living and they will rat each other out to you. Win-win. If you don't like the assisted living, then I would just move him to a better one and get an aide overnight. I don't think bringing him to a private apartment is a good thing with everything he has going on. I think that might be a dangerous move and the assisted living is set up already with accessible bathrooms and showers and other fall risk measures. When she is online (measured, corrected): the first version of this paragraph inferred night-time posting from the content ("It's 3:53 AM", "can't sleep past 3am"). The Reddit timestamps say otherwise. Of 450 Reddit posts with a time, 50% were written 9am–5pm US Central and 16% between 10pm and 5am; upvote-weighted, the peak hour is 11:00 with a second bump at 9–11pm. The 3am posts exist and are vivid, but she writes mostly from the workday, which fits the "work from home" pattern in the text. Weekday spread is flat (Tue 79, Fri 76, Mon 69, Sun 51); there is no Sunday-night spike. YouTube and TikTok comment times were not captured. Implication: daytime placements reach her; the night window is real for a minority and is where the most desperate posts come from. Tab 10 — Buyer Summary

The one-line ICP: An adult daughter (median age 57, 27% under 45, 30% over 65) caring for a mother in her mid-80s, often the only one who shows up, who has already tried doing it herself and one device and one bad hire, and who will buy from the first provider that answers the phone the week after the hospital discharge and sends the same person twice.

Who she is

- Measured, not assumed. Self-stated age appears in 237 first-person entries: median 57; 18–34: 33, 35–44: 31, 45–54: 42, 55–64: 60, 65+: 71. So "45 to 64" is the plurality (43%), not the whole market; 27% are under 45 and 30% are 65+ (older daughters and spouses). Gender self-markers run 328 female to 74 male, about 4 to 1, which supports "daughter" as the default voice.
- Who she cares for: a parent in 1060 documents, an in-law in 107, a grandparent in 81, a spouse in 71. The parent-caregiver is the corpus; spouse caregivers are a distinct, older segment and should not be written to with the same copy.
- Work: only 447 of 11,758 first-person entries mention a job, full-time work, remote work or leave. "Working daughter" is supported by the vivid posts, not by volume; do not lead with the job in copy, lead with the parent.
- The parent she cares for: stated age in 431 entries, median 85, mean 83.9; 55–64: 17, 65–74: 47, 75–84: 139, 85–94: 200, 95+: 28. A mother in 274 entries, a father in 98, an in-law in 15, a husband in 10.
- Her own children: mentioned in 321 first-person entries; grown or in college 97, school-age or teen 33, a toddler or baby 6. The "sandwich with toddlers" picture is 6 posters, not a segment. Marriage strain, separation or divorce is stated in 68 entries.
- Only child or the functional only child. 1325 documents mention a sibling or being alone in it; 214 say outright that the sibling does not help; "only child" appears in 120.
- Distance: 156 first-person entries say "hours away", "out of state", "across the country". The long-distance daughter is the one who posts about cameras and paying for hours; whether she buys sooner than the local daughter is not measurable in this corpus.
- She uses r/AgingParents, r/CaregiverSupport, r/dementia, AgingCare.com, the YouTube comments under caregiving videos, and Facebook groups. She reads Google reviews of agencies and facilities; one reviewer warns "DO NOT BELIEVE THE 4 STAR REVIEWS- THOSE ARE FAKE".

What she believes (that is wrong)

- "Home care is $50 an hour and the aide gets most of it." One insider post (765 upvotes) says the aide gets $17 to $18 and the office, insurance and no-show cover eat the rest; the replies under it are the only place in the corpus where anyone shows her the math.
- "An agency guarantees coverage." Agencies promise fill-ins "within hours" and then leave weekends uncovered (167 documents on no-shows and no backup); the intake promise and the month-one reality are both in her words in Tab 5.
- "Once I hire someone the problem is solved." The aide leaves and mom "sits with the TV on until I call." Companionship is what she is buying in those posts; the ads do sell it (32% of proven home care ads carry companionship language), so the gap is between the ad and the shift, not in the message.
- "If I don't do it myself I am a bad daughter." 610 documents carry guilt or the promise; Home Instead's most versioned ad attacks exactly this belief (my reading: that is evidence the belief is still the market).

What actually stops her

- Agency hour minimums. Measured: 14 documents mention a minimum (3 to 6 hours a shift, or 12 hours a week in 4-hour blocks); 3 of them are complaints ("I don't like their mandatory three hours", "I had a problem finding work for them because of the 3-hour minimum requirement", "$35/hour, 6-hour minimum"), the rest state it as a fact of pricing. Separately, 24 first-person entries ask for short blocks: "carers for one hour per day", "only looking for 9 hrs a week", "a few hours each day while my dad transitions home from the hospital", "8am to 12pm and 3pm to 8pm". On the supply side, 14 active ads state a minimum and only 7 of 18,392 sell "no minimum" (Always Best Care of Knoxville, 100 days live). So: real but thin. An unowned angle worth a test, not a proven driver, and the earlier line that "every one is a lost sale" was my inference and is withdrawn.
- No way to compare (one post, 29 upvotes, but no post in the corpus describes an easy comparison): "called six agencies, got wildly different quotes, had zero idea how to compare them."
- The stranger problem: her mother "doesn't trust easily", "refuses to let anyone come into the house", "won't answer the door". The daughter cannot buy what the mother will not open the door to.
- The paperwork wall: Medicaid waiver waitlists, VA Aid and Attendance nobody told her about, Area Agency on Aging that "almost nobody mentions".

How to reach her Where she already is, at the hour she is already there. Reddit r/AgingParents (183 of 331 posts pulled), the comment sections of the top caregiving YouTube videos (3,300 comments on one video), TikTok caregiving creators (a 349K-play video with 953 comments), Facebook caregiver groups, and Google reviews of the agencies she is comparing. Meta ads reach her; the Ad Library shows the incumbents spending on exactly her ("Daughters, this one is for you!"). Search: "in home care for elderly near me", "how much does home care cost per hour", "home care vs assisted living" are the autocomplete completions; "mom can't live alone" and "my mom fell and broke her hip" are the moments.

Target segments (include)

- The post-discharge daughter: parent leaving hospital or rehab with no plan, "I only learned about it on Friday"; the corpus gives her days, not weeks ("30 days to find a place" is the long end). Highest urgency in the corpus by post volume.
- The long-distance daughter with a parent who still lives alone, after the first or second fall (156 first-person entries). In her posts she asks about cameras, hours and whether the office will call her.

- The working daughter nearby who is doing the mornings and evenings herself ("8am to 12pm and 3pm to 8pm") and writes the "I quit" and "I am done" posts. Asks for respite and consistency.

Excluded segments (do not target)

- Families whose parent is already in memory care or skilled nursing; their need is facility oversight, not home care.
- Medicaid-only households (unless the agency takes waiver hours); the referral sites already burn these people and the copy would be dishonest.
- The parent themselves as the buyer. The parent is the veto, not the buyer; write to the daughter and give her the words to use with the parent.

The buying trigger An event with a date: the fall, the ER, the discharge call, the day the aide did not show. Zero entries in the corpus say an ad led them to a provider; the named triggers are the discharge, the fall and the no-show. 299 documents describe a fall or ER visit; 626 are about discharge, rehab or the social worker, the largest theme in the corpus by tightened count. In the corpus the purchase follows the social worker's call, the fall or the no-show; the "only learned about it on Friday" discharge is the most repeated shape of it.

The sales frame that works (a hypothesis built from the themes above, not a research finding) Not "compassionate care" (every competitor says it and the daughter has stopped hearing it). The frame is: you are not a bad daughter for getting help; here is the same person, on the day you need her, starting this week, with a human who answers at 3am, and hours that fit her, not a 4-hour minimum. Four of the five clauses map to frequency themes with 66 or more documents; the fifth rests on 15 mentions and 24 short-block requests, and the one competitor running the first clause (Home Instead) is the market leader in active ads.

Corpus: 15,867 entries in `hato.jsonl`. Quotes in this document: 191, every one with a source URL.

Facebook groups note (the thin source): Angela's account was created 2026-09-05. The group feeds render as placeholder units for it (four reader versions saw only link-alt chains), but permalink pages render fully, so the reader now harvests permalinks from the feed and in-group search, then opens each: 12 posts, 58 comments. Re-run `scripts/fb-groups-read.mjs` after the account has 1–2 weeks of normal activity; the feed should then populate and the yield should rise from a dozen posts to hundreds.

Go-Deeper Thread Cards (D2)

Cards are ordered by the number of corpus documents behind them, descending. Each card: the origin quote that named the entity, what was pulled, what came back (data), and the implication (my reading of the data, labeled as such).

Thread 1 — the promise

- Origin: "He made me promise him that I wouldn't put him in a facility."
- Pull: corpus grep (14 explicit + the guilt theme, 610 documents) and two AgingCare threads dedicated to it.
- Came back: "Promise your mother she will always be care for, but don't promise it will be by you." "These 'promises' are unrealistic." "Never Say Never... never tell your family that you're never going to a nursing home" (447 upvotes). The counter-current: "I promised my parents a long time ago that a care facility is the last option at the very end."
- Also: "I promised my parents a long time ago that a care facility is the last option at the very end of doing everything else including giving up my life". "She also made me promise her years ago to never leave her in a nursing home or facility. So the question is - what can or should I do?" "he always says well... I promised her I'd never put her in a facility. OK - his choice. These "promises" are unrealistic."
- Depth: 2 pulls (Tab 3 → corpus grep + two dedicated AgingCare threads).
- Implication: The brand name is the promise. The corpus says the promise, taken literally, breaks people. The copy has to redefine it: the promise is that she will be cared for at home by people who show up, not that the daughter will do it alone. That reframe is the entire positioning.

Thread 2 — the 4-hour minimum

- Origin: "I don't like their mandatory three hours."
- Pull: corpus grep "hour minimum" (15 documents) + price-per-hour ledger (86 documents).
- Came back: "$30/hour with a 4 hour minimum." "$22/hour to $35/hour... they also have a 5 hour minimum." "$35/hour, 6-hour minimum." "I had a problem finding work for them because of the 3-hour minimum requirement. They could not always come for me." "There is no discount for 24 hour care, it is just multiplied."
- Depth: 1 pull (corpus grep across AgingCare, Reddit, Caring.com).
- Implication: No advertiser in the Ad Library sells around the minimum. It is the cleanest mechanical differentiator available and it maps to the 7am/8pm shape of the daughter's actual need.

Thread 3 — the camera

- Origin: "Their excuse is 'she doesn't let me' but I have cameras and I know that they do not try."
- Pull: `r/AgingParents + r/dementia` "camera" (24 posts) + corpus grep (80 documents).
- Came back: Cameras are bought to watch the parent ("in case I don't hear from them") and end up watching the aide: "One carer forced him his dinner and talked baby talk to him... I cried." "we were able to see that AtYourSideHomeCare's employees came stayed less than 10 minutes." "the camera has been shut off by her for over half the time." "Put a camera in their room if they are in a facility - best thing I did" (138).
- Also: "I had to get cameras just to give myself some peace of mind and the chance to say no every so often". "I have a nanny cam on my 78 year old parent. I don't usually spy, but I have it in case I don't hear from them." (379).
- Depth: 2 pulls (Tab 5 quote → Reddit search + corpus grep).
- Implication: Assume the daughter has a Ring or Wyze pointed at the living room. An agency that says "we know you have a camera; here is what you'll see" (clock-in photo, visit notes, the same face) converts the surveillance fear into proof. Never write copy that would look bad on that camera.

Thread 4 — Care.com and the private hire

- Origin: "A lot of my clients from my agency are switching to private caregivers like Care.com."
- Pull: corpus grep (229 documents) + Care.com's own Facebook page comments (46).
- Came back: "the responses I get are overwhelming, disorganized, and a lot to process." "people wanted to be paid in cash or unreliable." "They get burnt out and I have to replace them after a while." "for $5/hr more i don't have to interview anyone or any of that legwork." On Care.com's page: "if you cancel a subscription they will still charge you." The home health worker's math: "you'll need at least four people to cover a full schedule."
- Depth: 2 pulls (corpus grep + Care.com Facebook page comments).
- Implication: The private hire is the daughter's price anchor ($20 to $25) and her cautionary tale (no backup, no vetting, cash). The $5 to $10 premium is sold by one sentence: you never interview anyone and someone always comes. That sentence appears verbatim in the corpus as the reason a daughter chose an agency.

Thread 5 — the hospital discharge

- Origin: "He was discharged just yesterday—which I only learned about on Friday."
- Pull: corpus grep "Kepro / unsafe discharge / refuse to pick up" (45 documents) + Tab 5 reading.
- Came back: A whole folk-procedure exists: say "unsafe discharge" (those exact words), threaten JCAHO, call Kepro, refuse to pick up. "Told her rehabilitation facility no safe discharge. Did not budge." Hospital case workers are the referral source in 5-star reviews: "The hospital case worker recommended Home Instead."
- Also: "Okay, what really happens if you tell a social worker/medical staff it is not safe to discharge your parent to home?" (58). "Tell them it would be an "unsafe discharge" (those exact words) and that you would report such a discharge to JCAHO". "Told her rehabilitation facility no safe discharge. Did not budge. They of course want her out asap so they were forced to contact a placement coordinator." (106).
- Depth: 2 pulls (Tab 5 → corpus grep + AgingCare threads).
- Implication: Discharge is the buying moment and the discharge planner is the channel. Comfort Keepers already runs a 100-day ad aimed at clinicians ("90% of your patients prefer to be at home"). The daughter-facing version is: if the hospital says she can't go home alone, we can be there the day she does. Build the "discharge week" offer around it.

Thread 6 — Area Agency on Aging, PACE, VA Aid and Attendance, Medicaid waiver

- Origin: "the thing I see almost nobody mention in threads here, is the Area Agency on Aging."
- Pull: `r/AgingParents` "medicaid waiver", "aid and attendance", "adult day care" (20 posts) + corpus grep PACE (19), AAA (17), Medicaid (306), how-to-pay theme 441 + TikTok (PACE video, 819 comments; CDPAP video, 305).
- Came back: "PSA if your parent(s) is a veteran" (171). "Medicaid waiting lists are YEARS long." PACE: "What a relief it is to have PACE pick my mother on weekdays." TikTok's most-commented caregiving videos are about getting paid through Medicaid or PACE.
- Also: "A bumble match (of all things) mentioned he got military disability pay for an ankle injury sustained in service. I mentioned that my dad wasn't injured, even though he served for 28 years and in Vietnam." (171). "Medicaid does a five year look back on everything. So you have to plan really far in advance." (612). "Many families don't realize some Medicaid programs allow loved ones to become paid caregivers instead of relying on nursing homes." (TikTok, 305 comments).
- Depth: 3 pulls (Reddit spin-off searches, corpus grep, TikTok).

- Implication: "How to pay for it" is unowned territory in the ads (no advertiser in the proven tier touches it) and the highest-engagement content on TikTok. A "how to pay for home care in Georgia" guide (AAA, waiver, VA, PACE, long-term care insurance) is the lead magnet the corpus is begging for.

Thread 7 — the medical alert button

- Origin: "I convinced her to get a watch with fall detection... today she fell again" (Tab 1).
- Pull: r/AgingParents "medical alert" (13 posts) + Amazon reviews of Bay Alarm Medical SOS Micro (1- and 5-star).
- Came back: "he keeps 'forgetting' to wear it... his lives in a drawer. we're paying $80/month for nothing." "says it's ugly and makes her feel like a patient." "for someone who does not understand why they may need a fall alert, it is worthless." Against that: "it was the Bay Alert people. She had fallen in the bathroom" (5 stars, daughter 3,000 miles away).
- Also: "My dad fell in his garage last week and couldn't get up for 20 minutes until my mom found him. I live 3 hours away and this is exactly what keeps me up at night." "What I'm really looking for is something reliable that won't give false alarms every time". "She refuses to wear it. She told us about falling, lying on the floor for about 2 hours".
- Depth: 2 pulls (Tab 1 quote → Reddit search + Amazon reviews).
- Implication: The button is the daughter's first purchase and its failure mode is the parent, not the hardware. Copy that says "a person, not a pendant" lands on a scar she already has. Bundle logic: the check-in visit is what the button pretends to be.

Thread 8 — "A Place for Mom"

- Origin: organic-rank list showed aplaceformom.com at #3 for the buyer's searches; Ad Library shows it absent from home care ads but Caring.com (its rival) running 78.
- Pull: r/AgingParents and r/CaregiverSupport search "a place for mom" (10 posts; 164 corpus documents name it).
- Came back: "They are stalkers. They will call and email you nonstop for YEARS" (584 upvotes). "Nursing homes pay to be on a place 4 mom... a place 4 mom harvests personal info and sells it to 3rd party spammers" (256). "If your LO does not have assets don't bother with APFM" (64). "Does 'A Place for Mom' sound like a scary movie to anyone else?" (138).
- Also: "They really do not care about your loved one they just want that check. They rush you, harass you and don't give a st !!!!!" (71). "DSHS was more of a help and that's mostly been giving me a long list of places that I have to research and call and tour. I'm burnt out. Haven't slept for days." (64).
- Depth: 2 pulls (organic rank → Reddit search).
- Added 2026-09-07 (new comment pull): the top comment in "Never use A Place for Mom" (264 upvotes) is a form to make them stop calling: "A reputable company gave me this link to send to APFM so they would LEAVE ME ALONE! I sent in the form and haven't been contacted since. They were horrible and the calls were relentless." (https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1kocug/never_use_a_place_for_mom/mspeptr/). A second thread links the Washington Post investigation on their "best" recommendations (https://www.reddit.com/r/AgingParents/comments/1d5k99e/friendly_warning_do_not_use_a_place_for_mom/6jvdlb/).
- Implication: The daughter has been burned by lead-selling referral sites and now reads any "free help finding care" offer as a trap. A Promise to Mom must never look like a referral funnel: no "get matched", no "we'll have agencies call you". State plainly who calls and how many times. The name itself sits one word away from the most hated brand in her feed; the copy has to establish distance in the first line.

Profile Pivot Signals (D4)

Cross-subreddit pull on the 20 highest-engagement authors in the corpus (Apify, user profiles). Seven authors appear in two or more of the caregiving subreddits within our own pull. The user-profile run result is in `raw/profile_pivot_result.json`.

Profile pull result (10 authors): other communities, by number of our authors present: r/Cooking (3), r/u_day1father (1), r/kidneydisease (1), r/PetPeeves (1), r/baltimore (1), r/Jokes (1), r/Catswithjobs (1), r/AskOldPeople (1), r/Cribbage (1), r/NoStupidQuestions (1), r/ravens (1), r/HomelImprovement (1), r/RBI (1), r/OldSchoolCool (1), r/woodworking (1), r/HistoricalCostuming (1), r/pittsburgh (1), r/steelers (1), r/landscaping (1), r/pestcontrol (1), r/soup (1), r/soupenthusiasts (1), r/WeddingAttireHelp (1), r/gardening (1), r/aldi (1), r/insects (1), r/whatsit (1), r/food (1), r/PhotoshopRequest (1), r/Mocktails (1).

What the pivot says (10 authors, 40 other communities): three signal clusters. (1) The parent's diagnosis: r/stroke, r/kidneydisease, r/breastcancer, r/GriefSupport — she researches the disease before she researches care, so disease-specific content (post-stroke discharge, dementia refusals) reaches her earlier than "home care" content. (2) The paperwork phase: r/EstatePlanning, r/RealEstateAdvice, r/Lawyertalk, r/howto — the house sale, the POA and the Medicaid look-back are live problems in the same weeks she is hiring. (3) Who she is when she is not caregiving: r/Cooking, r/soup, r/gardening, r/succulents, r/woodworking, r/HomelImprovement, r/landscaping, r/aldi, r/Mocktails, plus her city (r/baltimore, r/pittsburgh, r/raleigh) and its team (r/ravens, r/steelers). Home-centred, budget-aware, local, (my reading of the subreddit list; age is not stated in it). For Meta targeting, a hypothesis to test: home-and-garden and local-news interest overlays on the female 45–64 core rather than "senior care" interests. From the corpus itself: the same daughters post in r/dementia and r/AgingParents interchangeably, and the highest-upvoted authors write from r/CaregiverSupport when the parent is a spouse or sibling rather than a parent. Their other communities, from the pull so far, cluster around personal finance, hoarding, estrangement and grief, which matches the four secondary themes in the corpus (Medicaid look-back, "the stuff", no-contact siblings, "my mom finally died").

Competitor Map (D1b) — two axes

Sources: Google Maps (5 metros, 400 places), organic rank (Tavily, 9 queries), Caring.com listings, Ad Library (3,074 active US ads matching "in home care", pulled 2026-09-06).

Axis A — Established (footprint, reviews, organic)

Rank	Brand	Locations found (5 metros)	Google reviews	Avg rating	Organic weight	Note
1	Home Instead (Honor)	7	373	4.74	15	Also the #1 advertiser. The Coke.

Rank	Brand	Locations found (5 metros)	Google reviews	Avg rating	Organic weight	Note
2	Visiting Angels	7	116	4.71	15	Runs the oldest live ad in the category (2,588 days).
3	BrightStar Care	1	142	4.80	77	Nurse-led positioning; strongest organic.
4	Right at Home	3	73	4.83	11	Best Atlanta reviews among nationals.
5	Care.com (marketplace)	n/a	n/a	n/a	464	Owns search; hated on its own Facebook page.
6	TheKey	3	98	4.97	23	Premium; 20 years.
7	FirstLight Home Care	4	158	3.73	18	Houston reviews are the best 5-star copy in the corpus; rating dragged by other metros.
8	Assisting Hands	2	193	4.90	36
9	A Place for Mom (referral)	n/a	n/a	n/a	51	Most hated brand in the daughter's feed.
10	Comfort Keepers	2	29	2.45	8	Weak locally, strong in proven-tier ads.

Axis B — Aggressive (Ad Library, three exact-phrase pulls merged: "in home care" 3,074 · "senior care" 4,098 · "elder care" 506 = 7,205 unique ads, 1,714 advertisers; adjacent categories such as senior living, PACE, elder law, payroll and pet products excluded from this table)

Rank	Advertiser	Active ads	New in 30d	Proven tier	Oldest live ad	Video share	Franchise pages	Found via
1	Seniors Helping Seniors	745	115	342	324 d	19%	59	homecare, senior care
2	Amada Senior Care	371	263	2	1,039 d	29%	8	homecare, senior care
3	Home Instead	373	256	57	76 d	58%	4	homecare, senior care
4	Visiting Angels	97	52	32	2,588 d	28%	21	elder care, homecare, senior care
5	SYNERGY HomeCare	80	56	16	152 d	79%	11	homecare, senior care
6	Senior Helpers	64	48	10	93 d	47%	20	homecare, senior care
7	Caring.com	78	32	15	62 d	23%	1	homecare
8	Comfort Keepers	103	17	79	322 d	53%	25	homecare, senior care
9	Care.com	54	40	2	118 d	87%	1	homecare, senior care
10	Right at Home	51	38	7	880 d	14%	12	homecare, senior care
11	Avid Health at Home	41	41	0	4 d	0%	1	homecare, senior care
12	Always Best Care	45	39	5	107 d	87%	8	homecare, senior care

Reading the two axes together: Home Instead is on both lists at #1, which is rare and means the market has a real leader. Amada is the volume tester: the "senior care" pull found a 1,039-day-old ad, but of its 356 active ads only 2 are in the proven tier and 254 are under 30 days, so it churns creative and has not found a keeper. Comfort Keepers is the opposite (53 of 55 proven, nothing new in 30 days): found something and holds it, much of it the clinician-referral ad. Seniors Helping Seniors is a franchise swarm with a real proven core. Visiting Angels keeps a seven-year-old awareness static running; that is name-holding, not a hook. A Place for Mom appears only under "senior care" (37 ads, 46% video, none proven); it advertises placement, not home care, and buys the daughter one keyword away from us. Care.com runs 54 ads, 87% video, 342 of the 18,392 ads mention Atlanta or Georgia; the local advertisers are Seniors Helping Seniors Lanier (17 ads), Nelson Elder Care Law (8 ads), Just Care Home Care Services (4 ads), True North Senior Care (4 ads), plus elder-law firms; none of the national Axis B leaders runs Atlanta-specific creative in this pull.

Local independents by metro (Google Maps, home care category only)

- Atlanta: A Step Above Case Management (118 reviews, 4.4, and the worst 1-star communication complaints in the corpus), Koi Home Care (92, 5.0), Just Peachy Home Care (54, 4.9), Quality Care InHome Care (42, 4.9), Right at Home Atlanta (33, 4.9).
- Houston: At Your Side Home Care (127, 4.7, with the billing 1-stars), Primetime (111, 4.8), Astrocare (101, 4.8), FirstLight Houston Metro (89, 4.9).
- Phoenix: Team Select (82, 4.3), Phoenician Home Care (60, 5.0), Handled Home Care (52, 5.0), Home Instead (93, 4.8), TheKey (33, 5.0).
- Chicago: Help at Home (85, 4.1), AccentCare (77, 4.0).
- Tampa: Team Select (131, 4.9), Granny Nannies (108, 4.9), The Legacy Care At Home (43, 5.0).

Competitor Desire Map (D5) — what the proven-tier creative sells

Brand	Axis	Longest-running ad	Days	Versions	Format	Desire it sells	Gap
Visiting Angels	A+B	stock hands in scrubs, keyword headline	2,588	1–2	static	medical reassurance / brand name	no hook at all
BrightStar Sugar Land	A	"A Higher Standard of Home Health Care"	1,949	1	static	nurse-led credibility	clinical, not emotional
Right at Home Indianapolis	A	"trained, insured & bonded caregivers"	880	1	static	safety of the stranger	table stakes
Griswold	—	daughter hugging mother, "Live Assured"	823	1	static	relief for the daughter	no offer
Fedelta	—	"Customized Care... short-shifts to 24-hour shifts"	601	1	static	flexibility of hours	closest to the minimum-hours gap
Angels There For You	—	90-s client testimonial, one static shot	215	1	video	one consistent person you click with	regional (BC)
Comfort Keepers	B	"90% of your patients prefer to be at home"	100+	many	video	referral channel (clinicians)	B2B only
Home Instead	A+B	"Daughters, this one is for you!" UGC	73	many	9:16 video	permission, guilt release, long-distance	the only creative in her language

Consensus desire across the proven tier (measured on 1,583 proven home care ads, not the 14 eye-reviewed creatives): companionship / loneliness (32%), then flexibility / hours / respite (19%), then stay home / independence / dignity (16%); credentials 8%; permission and guilt release 1%.

Unsold desires, measured (corpus documents vs. proven home care ads that sell it): same caregiver every visit (183 docs; 5 of 18,392 ads), start the week of discharge (626 docs; 3% of proven ads), a human who answers at 3am (273 docs; no ad pattern), how to pay for it (441 docs; 8% of proven ads), hours that fit her rather than a minimum (15 mentions + 24 short-block requests; 7 of 18,392 ads say "no minimum"), and permission to get help (610 docs; 1% of proven ads).

Text classification of every ad (added after the merge): the eye-review above covers 14 creatives. To check it against the whole set, every ad's headline, body and link text was matched against 12 desire patterns (script `classify_ads.py`; an ad can carry several). Proven tier, 1,466 ads: brand-generic 42%, companionship 29%, stay home / independence 16%, hours / respite 12%, how to pay 9%, peace of mind 7%, safety & credentials 5%, post-hospital 3%, permission / guilt 1%. Two corrections to the eye-review's consensus: companionship is sold far more than the 14-creative sample suggested (it is the second most common proven message), and "hours / respite" is not absent, it is 12% of proven ads, mostly "24-hour" and "respite" rather than "no minimum." What stays true: permission and guilt release is 1%, post-discharge speed 3%, same-caregiver consistency does not register as a pattern at all, and nearly half the proven tier says nothing but a name and a service list. Home Instead's proven ads, and 1,959 ads in the merged set, carry Meta's catalog placeholders (`{{product.brand}}` , `{{product.name}}`) , `{{product.description}}`) instead of copy: these are dynamic creatives whose text Meta fills per viewer from the advertiser's product feed, so the Library stores the template, not what anyone saw. They now classify as "dynamic catalog template" rather than brand-generic, and on the page the placeholders are shown as such; where the ad is a video, the transcript is the real message. The full card set, with each ad's classes, is the Competitor Ads tab of the research page.

Impressions, added after Vince's note (2026-09-06 evening): the Ad Library hides US impression counts but offers the sort "Impressions: high to low". That ranking was scraped from the live Library through the research browser for every pulled keyword ("in home care" top 114, "senior care" top 70, "elder care" top 60, "aging parents" top 47, "elderly parent" top 45, "help my mom" top 2, "respite care" top 87, "home care agency" top 115, "24 hour care" top 67, "live in caregiver" top 20, "companion care" top 121, "adult day care" top 19, "dementia care" top 86, "caregiver for my mom" top 5, "home health care" top 111, "nursing home" top 59), and joined to the dataset by Library ID. A top performer is an ad in the top 20 by impressions for a keyword, run 60+ days, from a home care agency; 70 of 533 cards qualify: Visiting Angels (643 d, #1 for "companion care"); SYNERGY HomeCare (152 d, #1 for "in home care"); SYNERGY HomeCare (152 d, #1 for "dementia care"); BrightStar Care Louisville (1956 d, #2 for "home care agency"); Buffalo Homecare (523 d, #2 for "respite care"); Almost Kin (137 d, #2 for "home health care"); Visiting Angels (1117 d, #3 for "in home care"); Nurse Next Door Grande Prairie (793 d, #3 for "home health care"). Longevity alone had kept seven-year-old awareness statics at the top of the list; the impressions join moves the spend to the front.

Landing pages, added the same evening: every card's CTA link was followed headlessly and screenshotted (355 pages captured). Of those, 224 have a form, 254 show a phone number, 46 have neither, and 110 carry recruiting language on the family-facing page. Six were reviewed by eye; the reads are on the cards. The one that leads with how to pay (Amada San Diego North: VA accredited, LTC insurance claims, free care plan, "often within 24 hours") is the only page in the set that answers the corpus's top three questions on one screen; the best-built is Home Instead's four-step quiz ("Who is the care for? My parent(s)") with the phone shown twice. Two franchise pages put a caregiver-jobs banner above the family headline.

Keyword coverage: three exact-phrase pulls this month ("in home care", "senior care", "elder care"). Not pulled, for budget: "caregiver", "home health care", "respite care", "dementia care", "aging parent", "companion care", "home care agency", and brand-name pulls. "Senior care" returns adjacent categories (senior living, PACE, elder law, payroll, even pet products); they are in the raw dataset and excluded from the home care axis above. The refresh should run the seven missing phrases before trusting any advertiser count as complete.

Video Ad Transcripts (top 3 per competitor + hand-picked)

What the competition actually says out loud. The top 3 video ads per top-performing competitor, drawn from the full Ad Library pull (not only the ad cards), transcribed with faster-whisper small.en over the first 120 seconds. A competitor counts as top-performing when it is a home care agency or a facility, placement or referral advertiser and has a video ad running 60+ days, a place in the Library's impressions top 120 for a pulled keyword, or 5+ concurrent video ads; inside a competitor the three ads are ranked by impressions rank, then days running, then versions.

210 competitors · 440 family-facing video ads · 323 with speech · 92 silent or music only · 25 not retrievable. 29 further ads that sell to agency owners or recruit caregivers are set aside at the end of this chapter.

How the transcripts were made trustworthy. (1) A video link captured at scrape time is sometimes a video-only stream with no audio track, so every video was re-read from the ad's own Ad Library record and checked for an audio stream before transcription. (2) An ad page also embeds the advertiser's other ads; an earlier pass that took the first video on the page attached other ads' audio to many Library IDs, and every affected transcript was re-matched to its own ad. (3) The transcription model returns "Thank you." on music-only audio; that is reported as no speech. (4) The English model renders other languages as nonsense; every transcript was language-checked, and 12 were re-transcribed with the multilingual model (tl 3, es 3, hi 2, de 1, ta 1, te 1, ar 1, fr 1).

The same script under many advertiser pages

Franchise networks upload one national creative separately to each local page, so identical transcripts appear under different advertisers. The largest groups:

Navigating Dementia Care — Library ID 1535432121932740

"Memory care can cost $8,000 or more every single month, depending on where you live. And when families look at that number, they assume that is far out of reach. They assume you need savings. They assume you need long-term care insurance. They assume there has to be just some other family member who's going to figure this out. But here's what a lot of families don't know until it's almost too late. There is a government program designed specifically to cover long-term care, nursing homes, memory care, skilled nursing, for people who need it. It's called Medicaid Long-Term Care, and this is not the same as regular Medicaid or Medicare. Families who get their parent into memory care without draining their retirement aren't the wealthiest ones. They're the ones who learned how the system works before they were in crisis. And that's what I teach. Comment, write enough, and I'll send you where to start." — Library ID 1535432121932740 · 35 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1535432121932740>

"Have I ever told you about the story of when I realized that my mom needed some companion care? You all know that my mom was diagnosed with early onset Alzheimer's disease in 2014. She would often walk out the front door, go over to the neighbor's house, and sit in their garage waiting for them to talk to her. But she would really just scare them half to death. My mom also called me every four minutes. I worked a full-time job, and I was a long distance caregiver, and so there were often times when I had received 24 different calls per day. My mom needed a human. My cameras, my routines, my systems were not going to be enough for me to solely rely on to keep her safe and in the home. And that is when I realized I needed some companion care here with her, even if it was for a few hours a day, a few days a week. Because when it's not you, it's care.com." — Library ID 1719272026060860 · 44 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1719272026060860>

"Caring for our elderly loved ones can often be a journey filled with both love and challenges. Every family embarking on this journey encounters unique obstacles. One of the most common difficulties is the emotional and physical strain. It's like balancing on a tightrope, juggling our own lives while ensuring our loved ones receive the care they deserve. Now, let's talk about time. Providing elderly care requires a significant time commitment. It's a full-time job and sometimes even a 24-hour one. As our loved ones age, their needs increase and so does the demand on our time. And then there's the need for specialized knowledge. Understanding medical conditions, managing medications, knowing the right exercises and diet for them. It's not something that comes naturally to everyone. Throughout all these challenges, compassion and understanding remain our guiding light. They remind us why we're doing this. For love. For family. But remember, it's okay to ask for help. After all, we all want the best for our loved ones. Enter home care alternatives, your partner in providing the best care for your loved ones. We understand that every individual is unique, each with their own set of needs and preferences. That's why we offer a range of services that can be tailored to suit your loved ones requirements. Our skilled caregivers are more than just helpers. They're companions who bring warmth and friendship into your loved one's life. They assist in daily living activities, from meal preparation and personal hygiene to running errands, ensuring that your loved ones can maintain their independence while enjoying the comforts of home. Medication management is another crucial aspect of our services. Our caregivers are trained to help ensure that your loved ones take their prescribed medications on time, every time, alleviating any concerns you might have about missed doses or incorrect usage." — Library ID 1262363429032341 · 120 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1262363429032341>

"I've lived here in Newtown Square, Pennsylvania, for years, and after my wife, Edna, passed, I knew one thing. I wanted to stay in my home. I make too much to qualify for Medicaid, so I decided to pay privately for a live-in caregiver through Miracle Makers Home Care. And I can tell you, it's the best money I've ever spent. I have someone here every day who helps me with the things that have gotten harder, keeps me company, and gives my family peace of mind, knowing I'm not here alone. I'm still working in my garden. I'm still watching my eagles every Sunday. Go birds! And most importantly, I'm still living in the home where Edna and I built our life together. I'm not planning on going anywhere. I hope to stay right here for another 20 years. So maybe give Miracle Makers a call. If your mom or dad could use their services, they'll talk with you, explain your options, and help you figure out what kind of care might work for your family. It certainly made a difference for me." — Library ID 27588599890818165 · 90 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=27588599890818165>

"I'm a family caregiver here in Philadelphia. Home care is hard enough. I shouldn't have to spend every payday figuring out why my check is wrong. That's one of the biggest reasons I transferred to Miracle Makers. My pay is accurate, my clock-ins work, and if there ever is an issue, they actually fix it. I got a pay raise, incentives, benefits, and most importantly, they stay out of my hair and let me focus on taking care of my client. When I do need something, I call, they handle it, and I move on. No chasing people around, no constant headaches. The people are great, they're easygoing, and the whole experience just feels different. It's like VIP, white glove treatment for caregivers. There's a reason Miracle Makers is growing beyond Pennsylvania and expanding nationally. They know how to take care of the people who take care of everyone else. If you're tired of payroll problems and fighting with your home care agency, transfer to Miracle Makers. I did, and I'm not going back. "There's a crisis in caregiving for an aging parent or a loved one. It goes like this. Yesterday, you were a daughter, a son, or a spouse. Today, you're a wound care specialist, a medication manager, and a 24-hour security guard for someone with dementia with zero training. I'm going to show you how to make this challenge more manageable by yourself, how to carve out time for yourself, so you can begin to move away from putting out fires to managing with confidence. I've got a download showing you how to break away from the constant anxiety that uninformd caregiving brings. You need that because I know you didn't apply for this job. You didn't get an orientation, and you certainly aren't getting a paycheck. I'm the informed caregiver, and I want you to know that when it comes to elder care, figuring out as you go along is a recipe for burnout and medical mistakes. We can change that. I'm a professional caregiver and a family caregiver. I've got important information that will make a lot of difference for you because if you're trying to take care of mom or dad alone without training, you're setting yourself up for burnout. But first, let's talk about the medical gap in healthcare. Hospitals take care of people, yes. "Last week, we got 19 new clients with Home Care Grow. How'd she do it? We started by finding out who would pay her the most and stay the longest, starting with private pay, looking at Medicaid, and then veterans. For her, she couldn't accept veterans. Medicaid was most profitable, specifically family caregivers. Then we built and turned on our Medicaid specific meta ads campaign to attract them. As leads come in, we qualify them. "So visiting a loved one with dementia, it can be emotional sometimes, and maybe even overwhelming, but with the right approach, it can also be beautifully meaningful. So I'm going to give you five things that I want you to remember each time you walk through that door on a visit, right? So number one, introduce yourself. Yep, this might sound strange, but it actually helps them feel safe and grounded. Number two, smile and hold eye contact with them. For calm, positive presence, that matters more than your words. Number three, I want you to keep it simple, short sentences, and give them time to respond. Silence doesn't have to be awkward. It can actually be a space for you to connect. Remember that. Number four, lead with love. What does that look like? That means hold their hand or give them a hug or just sit beside them. Just touch can say a lot more than talk. And number five, be kind to yourself. You know, the harder it gets, the more that you may have to step away of expectations and just be present in that moment because they're not always going to remember the visit, but they are definitely going to remember the way that you made them feel." — Library ID 971509339042456 · 84 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=971509339042456>

In having handled cases all over the state, you can also be sure that we bring a great deal of background and experience to these kinds of cases. How do we make it work? Initially, we meet with clients by Zoom and after our initial review, if we decide to proceed with the case, the case is usually filed in the county where the nursing home is. That's why we've handled cases in so many counties throughout the state of Illinois. And once the case is filed, almost all of the work gets done by email or by Zoom. "Hi, I'm the executive director of Senior Helpers of Greater Chicago. One of the biggest misconceptions I hear is that families think they need medical care to call us. The truth is, most of our clients just need a little extra help. Things like rides to appointments, help around the house, meal prep, or just someone stopping by to check in. It's not about taking away independence, it's about helping your loved one keep it. You are not a bad daughter by getting some help with in-home care. I was burnt out trying to care for my mom who lives alone in Kentucky while raising my own family in Seattle. The distance was killing me. I finally learned about respite care and home instead. Their care pros not only helped my mom with doctor's appointments, they gave her real companionship that she needed when I couldn't be there myself. "Are you planning care for your loved one in the greater Seattle area? Start with real answers and trusted local guidance. If you're exploring care options for a parent or a loved one, don't start with a list of websites that could send you in loops. Start with clarity. We've created a free guide to help you understand what families in our region need to know, what care options exist, with what services are included, how families move forward with support, and what to ask before making a decision. At Silver Age Advisors, there's no cost to our support. We partner with over 1,500 care communities across the greater Seattle area. In most cases, those providers cover the cost of our services. If your situation calls for something different, we'll walk you through that upfront clearly without pressure. We've built close relationships with trusted providers. We screen each one carefully through our own qualification process and only suggest settings that we would feel confident recommending for our own loved ones. Our team brings decades of experience in dementia care, occupational therapy, family caregiving, and senior advocacy. We stay involved through every step of the process to make sure that nothing gets missed. This is not a search engine. It's personalized local support from people who have helped hundreds of families through the same process, including our own loved ones. Start with the guide. "I want to stand on the corner and tell everybody about PACE. It literally saved my life. PACE has allowed me to stay here and look forward to the future. It's been PACE that has brought me to where I am now, looking forward and looking up and knowing, and having people around to say complimentary things to me. I didn't have the energy. I can put the brows where they used to be and increase the lips a bit and pile the makeup on. But I don't have the energy to chop the food and prepare the meals. It's difficult accepting my limitations. But since my brain is not any different than it was, I can do my project, and that makes me happy. Tuesdays and Thursdays I come here, and I have help three times a week. And I feel like I'm learning now to engage and let them help me do what is needed, because I feel like I'm imposing, you know, getting help. But since I'm not going to be 80 or 70 or 60 anymore, I have to accept the help and be grateful that I have it. I was in a state of emergency. I needed help. They took care of me for a few months, and then they said, you need to have PACE there downstairs. And I said, wonderful. And PACE saved my life because at 93, I don't have the energy to do what I've been accustomed to doing. And I knew it. The Neighborhood Center introduced me to PACE, and PACE has literally saved my life." — Library ID 1901955407200614 · 120 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1901955407200614>

"So Table Rock is a great community. We're here for mom, dad, grandma, grandpa. We're here providing assisted living and also a memory care unit. We have amazing caregivers here, amazing MedTechs, an awesome AD. We have Rebecca, our coordinator of all the activities. She has these residents doing such fun things, field trips, exercise classes. We really wanna make this a home environment for them and make them and their families as comfortable as possible. So our memory care unit offers the same services as our assisted living side. We just bring it to them so that they're in more of a smaller unit, more comfortable with their surroundings and familiarity. But we bring exercise classes, we bring crafts to them. We have a hair salon here and our AL side, it actually comes to them in memory care so they get those same benefits. Not really much different between the two sides, which is nice. So there is nothing to be worried about. You don't have to worry about mom, dad, grandma, grandpa getting lost. I personally have a history of that. My grandpa had Parkinson's and dementia and there were times at home he would open the door and go outside and be found wandering the streets. So you don't have to worry about that here, but then you're not also worried that they're just stuck inside all day. It's totally understandable to be nervous about the whole aging process in general. And when you do see changes in your loved one, it can be taxing. Just to know that there are facilities and caregivers out there that want to help you and have the experience in helping people in your situation. I would say just come on down, come to us, take a tour of the facility. Bring your loved one. We do have times when people come in and they have lunch. So come down for lunch, come for dinner and let's help you as a family and an individual feel comfortable in the facility and really make the right choice, whether it's with us or with somebody else, we just want what's best." — Library ID 909766578082772 · 120 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=909766578082772>

"To any families or residential, potential residents that are watching this, it can be intimidating, it can be scary to consider taking this next step in their life to live and assist living with other seniors. I truly believe that once you visit our community, you will feel like you're at home. That is our purpose. That is our goal, is to make our residents feel as comfortable as they would in their own home. And that has to do with our friendly staff, our food quality, the environment in general. And I would highly encourage anyone to just come in, do a tour, you don't even have to schedule it, you can go online if you'd like to do that as well. "Struggling to find assisted living where you feel seen and heard? We offer around-the-clock care, an in-house chef that makes healthy meals, and a home nestled in these orchards. I've been to a lot of places for my husband. He has dementia, and it's progressing quickly. He's a lovely, sweet guy, and I wanted some place that could be comfortable for him. So after visiting many places, actually physically taking him there and spending a lot of money, I found this place through a mutual acquaintance, and she said, I think you'd like this. Can you expand your horizons beyond Thousand Oaks? And I said, well, I love that area, but I said, it seems like it's so far away, but it isn't. I'm 12 minutes and I'm here, and I think it's heaven on earth. It's just beautiful. The owners are wonderful. They listen. I couldn't be happier, really. "Thinking about assisted living for someone you love, discover a home with around the clock support, an in-house shelf, and beautiful orchard views. I took my mom to various places in Ventura County. We were looking to transition her out of her long-term family home into an assisted living and after visiting several corporate assisted living facilities, we felt that they weren't personalized. There was a corporate feel, the dining situation was not tailored to her needs and this would give her an opportunity to have some one-on-one care 24 hours a day in a homey environment and it felt like a family. We committed to the orchard within the first 15 minutes of coming here. "Hi, Silas and Judah here from Griswold Care Pairing to talk a little about Walkers. Muma and Poopal are starting to get up there. Pretty soon they're going to need a little extra help. We thought we'd get ahead of the game by checking out a few test models. Judah thought Poopal might like this one. I thought Muma might like something like this. Yeah, she spends more time on the computer with Amazon now. But this should bring back some fond memories. And then there's this bad boy. With all the activities, it should be great for waiting at the doctor's office. Because heaven knows they're going to spend a lot of time there. Speaking of needing a little extra help, that's what we do at Griswold Care Pairing. We recruit, screen, and refer caregivers that provide homemaking, companionship, and personal care services wherever your home may be. So if you want to test some of these Walkers, or if you need help with some of your home care needs, please give us a call at 813-343-0272. We are available 24-7. Naptime, Judah. "Based upon a recent survey, our hourly cost of care for the caregivers we refer is about $4 less per hour than many of our competitors. That's about $160 less per week or over $8,000 a year on 40 hours of care per week. If you need 24-7 care, that could be over $35,000 a year. And what is even better news? You don't have to skim on quality to get those rates. Our 5-star rating for the last 16 years has consistently exceeded 4.9 stars. So, if you have homemaking, companionship, or personal care needs, check out our website, read our reviews, read about our team, review our blog articles, and give us a call for a free consult. "In Pennsylvania, in-home care can average over $85,000 a year and nursing care can reach six figures. Retirement planning can feel so confusing. I kept asking myself, where do I even start? One option people often aren't aware of is friend's life care. They focus on helping people plan in advance so they can age at home, stay independent, and understand the care side of planning. "I talk to a lot of people who are pretty confident about their savings, but long-term care often doesn't enter the conversation until it feels urgent. Long-term care is more common than people think, and it can be expensive. In Pennsylvania, in-home care can average over $85,000 a year, and nursing care can reach six figures. Planning ahead gives people options. It creates clarity, flexibility, and peace of mind, and helps avoid making major decisions during a crisis. That's why I like introducing people to friends like care. "If I had to summarize Bird Home Health in one sentence, or our mission in one sentence, it would be, we want to help as many families as we can. It has made things so much easier for me. We're one big family. We genuinely care about everybody that we speak to, take care of, try to help. It allows the individual to actually stay in their home, and that's what most people want. Bird Home Health is a program where if you are elderly or have a disability and you are living at home, we can pay your family, your friends, to be a caregiver in your house. Instead of moving into a nursing home or a type of facility, we allow you to have the ability to choose who you want to care for you in your own home. They're only here to help. They want to help. If you have questions, they can answer it. If you need something done, they're not going to stop until they figure out how they can help you. That's their job. They want to help you get what you need. The family members are so grateful for this program, and that's why we believe so much in this program. That's why it's really been our vision since we started this company, is to focus on family caregivers. And that's also why we've established our company with a lot of our own family members. We're a family helping other families. I'm proud to work here because not only did my family start the company, but everybody's honest here. We're people over profit. I think that it just helps to allow them to have a longer and better life living in their own home rather than somewhere else. At the end of the day, we are helping other people. They can trust us. That would be the main thing I would say. "My name is Linda Albert. I am a mother of four. I'm a writer, a published writer, and published poet. We actually, my husband and I never really thought we'd end up in Florida, but we had very good friends who lived on Longbokie, and we stopped to see them years ago, maybe 25 years ago or more. We loved freighter trips. That's what we loved, and Longbokie was as close to the sea as you could get and still be on land. And so I decided it would be great if we could come back the following year and rent a place on Longbokie for a month, just for the fun of it, and we did. My husband had Parkinson's disease, but he really came back to life while we were down here. And that winter, and that changed, that really changed everything in our lives. And the couple who had, and we had gone to visit, eventually moved here to Sarasota Bay Club. Eventually, that's what we did, too. By that time, my mother and husband had died, and I had a significant other, and the two of us moved here. We had been together for eight years, and I came up with the idea. He thought it was crazy at the time, but we thought it was just being practical. And we weren't in a hurry, and I think it was 18 months later that we decided it was time. And there was not a day that went by after we moved in that we didn't congratulate ourselves on having made one of the best decisions we'd ever made in our lives. I've also been here for a hurricane, and we were very lucky for that hurricane in terms of not having any damage. But it was astonishing what they managed to do for us in terms of providing..." — Library ID 1496086525049588 · 120 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1496086525049588>

"My name is David Troxell and I'm the co-author of the Best Friends Approach to Dementia Care. The Best Friends Approach is a life-affirming model of care that is based on a very simple idea. What the person with cognitive loss, memory loss, needs is a friend, is a best friend. And the model is based on a couple of ideas. Number one is to know and use the person's life story. You want to celebrate their past, the awards they've won, their career, their lives. You want to always incorporate life story work into your care. You want to foster good communication because we know that the language centers of the brain are damaged by Alzheimer's disease. So best friends communicate and so learn some of the do's and don'ts of communication. Learn not to argue or correct and learn to fill in those gaps and be supportive. Friends do things together so you want to try your best to create a rich day of activities and engagement with music, exercise, and time outdoors. And finally, I would say friends are very forgiving and supportive of each other and we know that there are a lot of tough times with dementia care. When things get tough, I want you to remember that it's the disease, not the person, and do your best to be supportive because hopefully as you develop a best friend's philosophy, you're going to learn strategies and techniques that will make everything much better with the Best Friends Approach. "We are resources. We hear the term human resources in workplaces, but the reality is all of us are resources. We have gifts, we have talents, we have places where we are naturally able to do things well, but if we don't keep those areas of ourselves refreshed and poured into, then what ends up happening is we end up giving from a place of depletion. We're able to continue to work, but and do the activities of caregiving, and we're able to stay in the place of service to our family. However, we're doing it from a place of emptiness. When we learn to give from a place of restoration, we can gain a new perspective, like the one Janet holds on to. I have differences where I'm really frustrated, and then there are times when I just have so much joy because I'm there for my mom's end of her chapter. I want an honor that is to be there for her. I'm there for the long haul. I'm there, and that gives me joy knowing that I'm there for her, and I'm proud to be a part of that process, and I'm honored to be a part of that process. The honor Janet feels is not an accident. It is the proof of a simple, powerful truth. When we pour back into ourselves, we find the strength to pour out for others." — Library ID 1035272149068328 · 105 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1035272149068328>

"My name is Florence Sluppian. I'm 95 years old. The best thing about this place are the residents, and I've gotten to know a lot of them. My companion at dinner is a hundred and six years old, and she and I have a wonderful relationship. But there's also a respect for privacy. I respect it when the people who bring my breakfast knock on the door. And I live in our corridor where there are only three units and so it's very private. Another thing that is just fabulous for me is that this is in the middle of a forest. I see dogs, I see squirrels, I see brown rabbits, and I see this wonderful forest. "Hi, this is Sanjay Das with Always Best Care in Raleigh, North Carolina. My background isn't in home care, so it's in software management and things like that. So when I started off, I didn't know what to focus on or where I could play, if you will. I knew what the Always Best Care model was, which was non-medical home care and placement, I wanted to create something that was a niche for us, that we are recognized for. And so dementia comes in, and that's our specialty. Does that mean we know everything? No, it just means that we specialize in that. It's still within our Always Best Care model, which is home care. And it's non-medical, and the idea is how do we create our own, kind of like a mini-brand within the overall big brand. So that's what we're doing. So anything you put your heart in, you're going to be successful at. Well that's where we are. You know, we put our heart in, and we feel good about it." — Library ID 924255847365143 · 69 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=924255847365143>

"No one wants to talk about paying for home care, but it's something you need to think about sooner than later. And the good news is you have options. You can pay out of pocket. Maybe your loved one has income, savings, or assets. Option number two, private health insurance. A home care agency like Bright Star Care just might be a network. Number three, long-term care insurance. If your loved one has it, it may help with things like bathing or meal prep. If your loved one or their spouse served in the military, Veterans Affairs might be able to help. And then there's Medicaid and Medicare. Medicaid is state-provided and helps those with limited income. Medicare is federal insurance for those over 65. It has a few different parts that may offer some coverage. I get it. This stuff is complicated, and there's a lot of information out there about it, good and bad. So you've got to be careful. It might take a little work, like making a few phone calls or reading through our helpful Bright Star Care home care guide. If you want your loved one to experience this kind of home care, it's definitely worth it. "I've been caring for my mom for a few years now. I love her, of course, but it's been a lot. I stepped back from my job, I stopped seeing friends. I was doing everything for her, but only getting paid for a few hours a day. It felt like no one really saw how much I was doing or what it was costing me. Then I found PandaCare. They helped me get approved for more hours, but more importantly, they helped me. Through PandaCare, I found a support group. They helped me access respite care, and I started looking after myself again, just a little. "Does your parent have dementia and is it keeping you up at night thinking about them, you know, in their house, maybe making some bad decisions, not trying to scare you, but kind of the reality of dementia is that, you know, it affects the brain in a way that can be very dangerous to folks. So if your parent is still driving, if your parent is falling or making some bad mistakes financially, things like that, then those are all big, big giant warning signs that you need to get them help. So what I've been doing for the last 10 years or so is I've been helping people find placement here in the North County and Paso Robles and Templeton and Tascadero. And I know all the right questions to ask, and like I said, I've specialized in this, and I think I can really help you kind of make a really good decision." — Library ID 1014613304805654 · 55 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1014613304805654>

"So, my name is Nicole Grajalva. I am one of the two family advisors, and I also do the marketing for the community and event planning. Oh my gosh, there's many hats that we wear. Family advisor, anything from admissions to hospital visits for our patients that are out in the hospitals. So, while care visits, we do the move-ins. We have a resident services coordinator now. For each area of the community, whether it's independent, memory care, assisted living, there's a secret physician's packet that's needed. And obtaining that information may be simple to a family member, right? Where you just go get the packet and get it done. But working with those providers and getting that information is kind of that ticket. Which is kind of where we play in, so we take away that overwhelming feeling of having to get that paperwork done. And we do it on the back end, and we communicate with the providers to be able to get all that documentation and just ease their movement. We transition as family advisors for when the family leaves them with us. Now we get to be that family for them. Helping them learn the activities, calendar, and events. Introducing them to our welcoming committee. Introducing them to their families here, right? And their new friends here. We also partner with like realtors to help them sell their homes, because that's part of that transition that they can be overwhelmed with also. We partner with a moving company, and so the movers will go and set up and help them move their items over and just be there for them in that transition. I come from a big family with lots of people around me all the time is what I'm used to. Being in a community like this, when I can adopt a grandma or a grandpa or a family. At the end of the day to say, I made one more connection or one more." — Library ID 1377822107816853 · 120 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1377822107816853>

"My name is Jeff Creek. I work at Mountain View Retirement Village. I was actually lucky enough to get this position via my handyman business that I had years ago. I had a couple of customers who worked in our sister facility, and so I had kind of built a relationship with a few of their employees, and then I got to meet their executive director, and when the time came for them to look for a maintenance director, they called me. But what I didn't have before was the long-term connection, where you're seeing the people every day and all day long, and I didn't ever imagine that it would impact my personal life the way that it has. But the biggest thing is the learning part. Some of the people in this building have been some of the most influential business owners this town has ever seen. I mean, they've had successful businesses that their families have taken over, and they're still successful, and it's afforded them the opportunity to live like they live here, and I'm intrigued. I want to learn as much as I can from them. And just being interested has brought on a lot of personal relationships with a lot of people that I wouldn't normally cross paths with. I appreciate that more than anything, and I learn everything that I can from them. That's what I appreciate about this building, more so than any other building that I visited being in this role. Yeah, we've got a really, really good culture here, more than any job I've ever had, so super grateful. Yeah, super happy about it." — Library ID 1364714651879641 · 90 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1364714651879641>

"Hi, this is Sanjay Das with Always Best Care in Raleigh, North Carolina. My background isn't in home care, so it's in software management and things like that. So when I started off, I didn't know what to focus on or where I could play, if you will. I knew what the Always Best Care model was, which was non-medical home care and placement, I wanted to create something that was a niche for us, that we are recognized for. And so dementia comes in, and that's our specialty. Does that mean we know everything? No, it just means that we specialize in that. It's still within our Always Best Care model, which is home care. And it's non-medical, and the idea is how do we create our own, kind of like a mini-brand within the overall big brand. So that's what we're doing. So anything you put your heart in, you're going to be successful at. Well that's where we are. You know, we put our heart in, and we feel good about it." — Library ID 4485961095056044 · 69 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=4485961095056044>

"Looking for senior care that actually brings joy to your parents' day? Most senior daycares feel like a waiting room. Evergreen feels like a club. At Evergreen Daytime Senior Care in Stanford, your loved one will step into a space that's warm, lively, and built around one thing, making every day something worth looking forward to. Click the link below and fill out the form to learn more today. Isolation is one of the biggest threats to a senior's health. When your parent or loved one spends most of their days alone at home, their mental sharpness, physical health, and overall sense of purpose can all quietly decline without anyone noticing. At Evergreen, that changes. Here, members spend their days doing things they actually enjoy. Baking classes, art projects, puzzles, and creative activities keep the mind sharp and the days full. Chair exercise programs give the body a reason to move. Meals are nutritious and shared together in a way that feels social, not institutional. And throughout the day, our caring and trained staff takes the time to make sure every member feels genuinely known and cared for. When the day is done, your parent or loved one will come home happy and fulfilled. Plus, we offer door-to-door transportation. So getting your loved one here and home safely is one less thing on your plate. Find out what Art Club is all about. "If you worked at K-25, ORNL Y-12, or another Department of Energy facility around Oak Ridge, this message could be important for you. Thousands of former workers developed illnesses after years of supporting our country's nuclear weapons program. Because of that, many workers now qualify for benefits through the Department of Labor's EEOICPA program. Most people know it simply as the white card. If you're approved, those benefits may include skilled nursing care, caregivers in your home, medical equipment, medications, travel to medical appointments, payments totaling up to $400,000. But here's what surprises people. Many eligible workers either don't know they qualify or they already have benefits and don't realize they have the right to choose a different home care provider. At Liberty Home Care, we specialize in helping Department of Energy workers understand their benefits and receive the care they've earned. If you worked at K-25, Portsmouth, Paducah, Y-12, ORNL, or another covered Department of Energy facility, take just a minute and see if you qualify. Fill out the short form below or give us a call at 865-350-6312. You spent your career serving our country. Now let us help make sure you receive the benefits you've earned." — Library ID 1012027588547612 · 87 s · faster-whisper small.en, first 120 s · <https://www.facebook.com/ads/library/?id=1012027588547612>

"If you worked at Y-12, K-25, Oak Ridge National Laboratory, or another Department of Energy atomic facility in the Oak Ridge area before 1996, this message is for you. Former atomic workers may qualify for benefits through a federal Department of Labor program called EEOICPA, often referred to as the White Card Program. If your health was affected by radiation, toxic chemicals, asbestos, beryllium, or other hazardous materials, you may qualify for compensation up to $400,000 in medical benefits. And if you have a Department of Labor White Card, you may qualify for in-home health care with no out-of-pocket cost to you, including nursing care and help with daily activities. Liberty Home Care specializes in helping atomic workers and their families understand and use these benefits. If you worked at an Oak Ridge atomic facility before 1996, click below and fill out the short form. "Did you work at Y-12, K-25, ORNL, or another Department of Energy facility? Many former DOE workers don't realize they may qualify for valuable federal benefits. Let me ask you something. Does your spouse help you around the house? Maybe they cook your meals, pick up your prescriptions, drive you to doctor's appointments, or help you with everyday tasks. If you qualify for the federal benefits available to DOE workers, commonly referred to as white card benefits, your spouse or another eligible family member may be able to serve as your caregiver and, if they meet the program's requirements, may be paid for the care they're already providing. To find out whether you may qualify, fill out the form below with your name, phone number, the DOE facility where you worked, and the years you worked there. Dislikes & Complaints Ledger

Every 1–3 star review, every complaint comment on a competitor page, every first-person complaint post, clustered by what she is actually complaining about. Pool: 1,683 one-to-three-star reviews (Google, Caring.com, Amazon, TrustPilot), 549 first-person complaint posts, 835 theme hits (a post can hit several).

What she complains about, wherever she complains. Pool: every 1–3 star review pulled (Google 211 of 869, Caring.com 17 of 314, Amazon 55 of 273, TrustPilot 1400 of 2629), the complaint comments on competitors' Facebook pages (3 of 46), and every first-person post or comment that uses complaint language about a named agency, aide, facility, product or site (549). Themes require the complaint itself, not the topic. Star-band note: Google reviews of the facilities and agencies pulled split 187 one-star to 398 five-star; Caring.com is 17 low to 245 five-star because families write there after a good match. Ad comments themselves are not readable through the Ad Library; the only ad-adjacent complaints are on Care.com's page.

In her words, by theme (same order as the table).

Neglect and harm inside facilities (the placement side of the promise): "During her stay, she was frequently left sitting in her own urine and feces for long periods of time. Basic care like cleaning, repositioning, and feeding was not consistently provided." (Google, Elevate Care Windsor Park, 1★) · "when we removed him and took him to the hospital, doctors confirmed he was suffering from malnutrition. That is not a misunderstanding. That is neglect." (Google, Buckhead Center, 1★) · "She ran to his room to find his catheter filthy and not changed, searched for an hour for a nurse and they were all out to lunch at the same time." (Google, Aperia Care, 1★) · "It is my belief that after we complained, and my father complained of pain, they heavily sedated him." (Google, Elevate Care, 1★)

The aide did not show and nobody covered it: "I have missed countless hours of work and other responsibilities and plans due to caregiver "no shows." Yet again this morning, no one showed. These "no shows" are no show and no phone call to tell me no one is coming." (AgingCare) · "one of the main caregivers no called no showed. The agency was only able to find someone to cover 2 of her 5 days." (r/CaregiverSupport) · "Some caregivers call out and there is no backup. There were days we were without anybody." (Caring.com, Visiting Angels Atlanta, 4★) · "The caregivers were not consistent, and they were late all the time." (Caring.com, Visiting Angels Atlanta)

The aide sat there: "Patients could be heard screaming in pain down the halls, begging for help, while staff sat on their phones without lifting a finger." (Google, Buckhead Center, 1★) · "the hired caregiver just comes in, watches TV and does the bare minimum without trying to engage" (AgingCare) · "one caregiver failed to properly change him and spent much of the time sleeping." (Google, At Your Side, 1★) · "They get a DIFFERENT person every time (no consistency), not to mention they dress and speak very poorly" (r/eldercare) · "Sometimes my caregiver doesn't pace themselves very well and ends up sitting and talking rather than working for the full time they are here." (Caring.com, 4★)

Rude or dismissive staff: "one of the nurses tried to argue, informing me "You're not a nurse."" (Google, ALIYA on 87th, 1★) · "Angie told us she didn't care about us because she has "tons of other patients we make no difference"" (Google, Team Select, 1★) · "Joey became very hostile upon explaining to me the operation of paperwork" (Google, A Step Above, Atlanta, 1★) · "The supervisor Santiago was very rude and talked to us like we were idiots!" (Google, Gasp, 1★)

Theft and trust: "She stole expensive electronics, pricey, lotions, and facial creams and potions. She took my jewelry home and said it was an accident." (r/CaregiverSupport) · "A longtime CNA with the professional agency stole a check from my mom." (AgingCare) · "Even in the hospital, a hired caregiver stole my mother's Estee Lauder perfume." (AgingCare) · "She just stopped showing up one day. She had my house key, too." (AgingCare)

The office does not answer: "I left at least 20 messages every week requesting updates, yet the office never returned a single call." (Google, A Step Above, Atlanta, 1★) · "I can never get anyone on the phone, and calls go unanswered with no follow-up." (Google, Buckhead Center, 1★) · "There was a caregiver that didn't show up and I'm still waiting for a call back from the office to know why." (Caring.com, Visiting Angels) · "I've left voice messages for several elder care agencies this morning to get advice on how to get help for my parents-no return calls yet." (YouTube)

Told what we wanted to hear: "They will tell you exactly what you want to hear but do not deliver." (Google, Avir at Orem, 1★) · "They assured me it wasn't a problem, that if someone didn't show they'd send someone to fill in within hours. Less than 1 percent unfilled, they said. Fast forward to a month with them: they lied." (r/AgingParents) · "They present themselves well publicly, but our family saw a very different reality behind the scenes." (Google, Buckhead Center, 1★)

Paid a lot and got little: "For $30-$40 an hour for 12 hours, what the hell did I just get?" (r/CaregiverSupport, 28) · "The services are very minimal. They are just here for three hours and then they are gone" (Caring.com, 2★) · "This company does not communicate well. It's not worth the money." (Google, Team Select, 2★) · "I make 140k and still can't afford my mom's care" (r/AgingParents, 226)

Billing: "They consistently overbilled for time not worked. I learned that they don't bill based on the care giver's time sheet. They bill whatever they want and it's up to you to notify them" (Google, At Your Side, 2★) · "Visiting Angles charged us for the week Mom was in Skilled Nursing and the next two weeks to finish the contract. The result—the charged Mom nearly $2000 dollars for 10 hours of questionable care." (Caring.com, 1★) · "they didn't inform us that we had to pay extra for mileage." (Caring.com, 4★) · "if you cancel a subscription they will still charge you. I cancelled 2 years ago and suddenly they decided to start charging me again.....I'm out 155.00." (Facebook, Care.com's page)

Referral sites: "They are stalkers. They will call and email you nonstop for YEARS." (r/AgingParents, 584 upvotes) · "a place 4 mom harvests personal info and sells it to 3rd party spammers." (r/AgingParents, 256) · "after giving A Place for Mom my info to try to find a place for mom who is on Medicaid only, they cannot help. They only deal in private pay." (r/AgingParents, 64)

Products: "Fall detection does not work. My mom has had this device for 3 months and falls multiple times a week. The fall detection has not worked once." (Amazon, Bay Alarm SOS Micro, 1★) · "I got LOTS of alerts about the battery being low, but was not informed when he pushed the button. As a result, EMS was called out for no reason." (Amazon, 1★) · "his lives in a drawer: we're paying $80/month for nothing." (r/AgingParents) · "the camera has been shut off by her for over half the [time]" (r/AgingParents)

Pattern across the ledger: the complaints about home care are almost all about the agency's operations (show up, answer, bill honestly, send someone who works), not about the idea of home care; the complaints about facilities are about bodily harm; the complaints about products are about the parent refusing the device; the complaints about referral sites are about being sold. Each of the three ways inherits a different complaint set, and the copy for each has to answer its own.

Ad Brief

Vince's approach after reviewing the research, every line checked against the corpus with counts and verbatim examples. The 10-tab is the evidence; this is the decision.

Status: Vince's approach after reviewing the home care 10-tab. The 10-tab itself is unchanged; this is the strategy layer on top of it. Each line below is his; the count is how many first-person documents in the 15,867-entry corpus carry that idea (reviews excluded except where marked), with the fullest, most-engaged verbatim example. Thin counts do not disqualify a line; they mean the corpus rarely says it in those words.

The approach, in Vince's words

When we reach her. After she has had time to do it herself and explore other options. Not the hospital discharge / rehab cycle (the facility most likely has contracts or agreements with others that get recommended first). Guilt, exhaustion, her family are the costs we name. She does not have to do it alone, or in tension with her siblings. She will see it after she fired an agency or caregiver, or after a stubborn parent refused help. Not at the fall or the ER visit.

Do not use, because these abandon her: empty words are the villain. "You're so strong." "God gives us only what we can handle." "Your mom is lucky to have you." Fake positivity. Smile through suffering. Be strong. Be grateful.

Not our targets: "Something is off with mom." "Mom can't live alone." Googling at 1am. Comparing six quotes. "$5 an hour more so I don't have to interview anyone."

The line (added by Vince, 2026-09-07)

You're not failing because you can't keep smiling, the system is failing you. You don't need inspirational quotes. You need respite care.

Provenance: this is her voice almost word for word. r/CaregiverSupport, "Dear toxic positivity society: Shove your fake words and fix the respite care system", 406 upvotes: "To every caregiver who's exhausted: Your anger is valid. You're not failing because you can't keep smiling. The SYSTEM is failing you. You don't need better coping skills. You need systemic change. You don't need inspirational quotes. You need affordable respite care." (https://www.reddit.com/r/CaregiverSupport/comments/1oufhcc/dear_toxic_positivity_society_shove_your_fake/). Its sibling, 427 upvotes, the "You're so strong = you're on your own" post: "I dont need your theology. I need respite care." (https://www.reddit.com/r/CaregiverSupport/comments/1pcgrfuly/oure_so_strong_youre_on_your_own_a_caregiver/). Those two posts are the highest-engaged manifestos in the corpus and they name the villain (empty words) and the product (respite) in the same breath.

Role in the approach: the manifesto line, the anti-platitude position, and the front-end product in one sentence. If the ad says "you need respite care," the first thing she can buy has to be respite in the literal sense: a night off, a weekend, the first four hours she has had to herself, with the same caregiver coming back. The corpus's respite theme is 169 documents and "I want to sleep through the night" is the second-largest desired outcome; a respite-first offer under this line is the most direct match between the message and what she says she wants.

What the check says (my read, labeled)

- The "when" holds. "Stubborn parent refusing help" (381) and "tried to do it herself first" (379) are two of the largest first-person themes in the corpus; "fired an agency / no-show" is smaller in her posts (29) but is the #2 complaint theme in the Dislikes ledger (80 documents across reviews and posts).
- On the discharge moment. The corpus does not measure facility contracts directly. What it shows: at discharge the social worker or case manager is the one who recommends (Google reviews: "the hospital case worker recommended Home Instead"), A Place for Mom is paid a month's rent by the community it places into, and only 2% of proven home care ads sell the post-hospital week. All three are consistent with Vince's call to enter later.
- The feelings are the heaviest themes in the data: marriage / kids / stretched thin 654, exhausted 541, guilt 386, alone 224, anger 219, "society says" 205, living nightmare 171, one more thing on her plate 167, the distance 153, how to afford it 150.
- Every vivid line exists verbatim: "I took the phone out of the wall yesterday because I just couldn't take another call just 'checking on us' only to be unavailable when I ask for help" (95); "drowning in butt cream, doctors appointments and diapers, we don't have time for empty words when we should be catching up on sleep" (95); "I can finally breathe" (387); "You're on a waiting list!" (479).
- The villain is documented: 188 first-person documents carry the empty words, and 19 name them as the problem ("In three decades I've learned to translate caregiver platitudes", 427; "Dear toxic positivity society: shove your fake words and fix the respite care system", 406; "unhelpful platitudes from people who seem to have conveniently forgot that dementia doesn't get better", 479).
- The excluded segments are small in this corpus (5, 10, 1, 5 documents): the corpus was pulled around the caregiving verbs, so early-awareness voices are under-sampled here; that supports leaving them out of these ads without saying they do not exist.

Acquisition Economics & APFM Benchmark

The campaign planning model uses two cost views. Raw cost to produce is based on $5,000 of media spend only. Fully loaded cost includes the same $5,000 of media plus a $5,000 service fee, for $10,000 total marketing cost. The campaign figures below are optimistic modeled ranges, not guaranteed results.

Raw cost to produce — $5,000 ad spend only

Editable calculator defaults used on the live page: target 5 acquired clients; 33.4% of leads qualify; 49.7% of qualified leads connect; 35% of connected calls proceed to an in-home assessment; 50% of assessments become clients. With those inputs, the model requires about 172.1 raw leads for 5 acquired clients. Changing the target-client input or conversion inputs on the page recalculates the event-count column and target acquisition budget.

Funnel stage	Needed for 5 acquired clients	Optimistic Medicaid	Optimistic Veterans	Optimistic Private Pay
Raw lead (CPL)	172.1 raw leads	$9.90–$10.29	$25.40–$25.72	$27.38–$51.44
Qualified lead (CPQL)	57.5 qualified leads	$29.66–$30.81	$50.80–$51.44	$81.96–$155.87
Connected call	28.6 connected calls	$59.67–$62.12	$101.60–$102.87	$165.06–$302.56

Funnel assumptions and one-client workload

Model	Key assumptions	Approximate raw leads per client
Medicaid	33.4% qualify; 49.7% of qualified leads connect; 34.9% of calls assess; 50–89.7% of assessments close	19–34
Veterans	50% qualify; 49.7% connect; 34.9% assess; 50–77.3% of assessments close; 8% lead-to-close target	12.5–22
Private pay	33.4% qualify; 49.7% connect; 34.9% assess; 41.3% of assessments close	22–33 modeled
A Place for Mom	About 35% connect; 13% assess; 3–7% become clients; 6–9 call attempts per aggregator lead	15–30 practical

At APFM's reported $55–$58 raw lead cost, 15–30 leads imply a practical $825–$1,740 CAC. The exact endpoints of a 3–7% close rate are 14.3–33.3 leads and approximately $786–$1,933 CAC. At 6–9 attempts per lead, acquiring one client can require roughly 90–270 call attempts, before texts and emails. APFM referrals may also be shared with several competing agencies, making speed-to-contact operationally important.

Home care revenue and profit context

Home Care Boost's 2026 home care profitability benchmark says typical non-medical private-duty billing runs $22–$40/hr, well-run independent agencies at $1–5M annual revenue often land at 15–25% EBITDA, and the economics scale with billable hours more than client count. At $70,000/month and $30/hr, the agency needs about 2,333 billable hours/month. A 15–25% EBITDA range implies roughly $10,500–$17,500/month of EBITDA before owner-specific adjustments.

Weekly hours per client	Exact clients for $70k/mo at $30/hr	Planning roster target	Roster gross revenue at $30/hr
40 hr/week	13.5 clients	15 clients	~$78,000/month
20 hr/week	26.9 clients	29 clients	~$75,400/month
12 hr/week	44.9 clients	49 clients	~$76,400/month

APFM lead profile fields: primary contact name, phone, email and relationship to the senior; care-recipient name and location; target city/state/ZIP; urgency and expected start date; ADL assistance and medical context; companionship, meal, medication, housekeeping and transportation needs; hours and schedule preferences; estimated budget; and likely funding source.

The 35% connected, 13% assessed, 3–7% client and 6–9 attempt assumptions are planning benchmarks supplied for this model and should be validated against an agency's own CRM.
